

Lyn Peterson Design – Gallery

Lyn Peterson began her design career with a small retail shop in Larchmont, New York some thirty years ago. Happenstance—and another designer's eleventh-hour cancellation— led to a spot in the prestigious Kips Bay Showhouse. Lyn's basement aerie, complete with greenhouse, landed her on the front page of the New York Times Style section as well as on the cover of House Beautiful. Her career was launched.

Clients in ports as far-flung as England, Alabama and California soon followed with a variety of projects, from historic renovations to from-the-ground green construction. But Lyn remains a local girl at heart. A wife and mother of four (and grandmother of three), Lyn is in her own words: "At my best making a house a home. Family and friends is where it all begins and ends."
